

BOOK REVIEW: 2008-2009 World & Financial Prophecies (5th Edition)

By Mahendra Sharma — Reviewed by Anita Finley

In this age of uncertainty, everyone wants to know whether it's going to be a bull or bear market, which commodities are going to skyrocket, and which will hit rock bottom. Knowing who will win the 2008 elections will help market speculators. Mahendra Sharma has devoted years of study to predicting natural, political and financial upheaval. He accurately predicted the terrorist attacks of September 11th, the fall of the Soviet Union, the resignation of Castro, the devastation wrought by hurricanes Katrina and Wilma, and well as the rise of oil and prices and the fall of the U.S. dollar.

As an astrologer who specializes in reading the global market, his predictions have been met with suspicion. But his long list of accomplished and reputable clients—major corporations and financial institutions included—attests to the validity of his methods. A household name in both Kenya and South Africa, Mahendra Sharma comes from a long line of astrological readers and gurus. The author explains the reasons he writes these books. He says: "...because I have to present what I see before the world for all to know and be accordingly informed. This is part of my contribution to the world from what I have obtained from nature. Though I write with the expectation that all my predictions shall come to pass, I nevertheless pray that the negative prophecies will not see the light of day and only the positive should find fulfillment many times over."

After reviewing each of the chapters, I see where his advice could help you make smart decisions about your financial health. Sharma also talks about "what the stars say about religion," and explains what he sees occurring in Christianity, Islam, Hinduism, Buddhism, and Judaism. In another chapter, he talks about "World Events in 2008-09," including Natural Disasters (hurricanes, floods, drought, fire, volcanoes, and terrorist attacks). His financial coverage of what will happen to Metal, Energy, Grains and soft commodities, the currency market and the real estate market is important to know. Very impressive rationale for all of these issues.
